

I am extremely happy with the effectiveness of the Indiana Do Not Call list. After a tiring day at work I used to be harrassed by 10 to 20 unsolicited calls each evening.

I now receive only an occasional such call.

I pay for the telephone service in my home. If it is necessary for telemarketers to be able to harass me in my home, then they should pay my telephone bill.

I am against any action that would lessen the effectiveness of the Indiana Do Not Call list and will do everything I can do to help keep the law in effect.
